FACULTY SEMINAR

Saturday, 09 December 2017: 02.45 P.M. Venue: Committee Room, Maharshi Valmiki College of Education
Topic: Pedagogical Imperatives for Teacher Educators Under School Internship Model
Presentation by: Ms. Meenakshi Chawla Assistant Professor, Maharshi Valmiki College of Education
Abstract: The presentation is based on the M.Phil. work of the faculty member. The presentation highlights the need to comprehend the role of teacher educators in preparing student teachers through school internship model under the two-year B.Ed. programme. The assumption that there is a linear relationship between the curriculum change and role of teacher educator is questioned. The change in the structure of B.Ed. curriculum including the component of school internship demands a particular kind of understanding and engagement of teacher educators. The preparedness of teacher educators becomes an important area of research in such a case to be able to exert maximum impact on the process of preparing student teachers in the new B.Ed. programme. The presentation makes an attempt to derive theoretical insights and pedagogical suggestions for teacher educators in the light of School Internship Framework and Guidelines, NCTE (2016). The preparedness of teacher educators is determined to the extent they understand their learners, student teachers in this case. The paper, taking cue from Shulman's concept of PCK (Pedagogical Content Knowledge), suggested that the produce of interaction between student teachers and teacher educators can be optimized if teacher educators lay emphasis on knowing their student teachers, prepare them for school internship from B.Ed. first year onwards and design their internship supervision accordingly.
